Call of papers 3

"Environment and transitions in the face of the global climate-ecological crisis".

1. About the Journal

The CEERI Global Journal is a digital scientific journal aimed at disseminating research papers related to the study area of International Relations. Thus, it aims, from its fundamental bases, to promote scientific research and disseminate knowledge related to the different areas of study of International Relations, seeking to address a contemporary agenda in a presentation updated to our times. To this end, we propose to create an innovative format that incorporates digitalized information, through the use of computer tools and novel ways of publicizing academic content.

CEERI Global Journal accepts articles from specialists in the different areas of International Relations and related sciences, which allows it to have quality content, positioning it among the most recognized journals.

The Journal is open-access and free of charge. It is published biannually in the electronic portal www.ceeriglobal.org, where it can be downloaded in PDF format.

All articles submitted for inclusion in the CEERI Global digital journal must be original and unpublished.

The objectives are the following:

1. To publish and disseminate original and updated scholarly articles, essays, book reviews, interviews, updates on topics and research in progress or completed.
2. To form an open access and participatory epistemic community of International Relations.
3. To promote the dissemination of academic research and studies conducted by a wide range of participants, including students, academics and practitioners.
4. To foster the link between experts, students and practitioners in the field of International Relations.

Frequency of publication

The CEERI Global Journal is published twice a year, at the end of each semester.

This section corresponds to research carried out by the different Research Areas of CEERI. One research per area will be accepted; they must meet the editorial criteria of the journal.

- Multimedia Segment

It consists of the publication of content in multimedia formats, interviews, podcasts, among others, where referents of the academic and professional environment of Argentina and the world participate. Published in virtual format and on CEERI's platforms.

2. Editorial Policy

CEERI Global is a biannual publication of the Center for Strategic Studies in International Relations. It publishes academic articles previously submitted to external and independent peer review in order to reach a level of excellence. The articles refer to a wide range of issues related to security, environment, economy, law, politics, among others. They are evaluated according to their originality, their contribution to the field of International Relations and their theoretical and empirical consistency. Contributions that can be made from disciplinary perspectives other than International Relations are considered, since it is understood that the transformation process the world is currently undergoing requires a transdisciplinary and creative approach.

3. Scope of the Call for Papers

Theme of the third issue: "Environment and transitions in the face of the global climate-ecological crisis".

Climate change and the deepening global ecological crisis, already emerging as the greatest challenges of the 21st century, place the environment as a central field of study in the discipline of International Relations. The Third Edition of CEERI Global is dedicated to analyzing the shaping of global environmental governance as well as the relationship between the environment and the economic system, security and democracy. The focus is on the ecological and energy transitions towards sustainable development models that promote a paradigm shift.

The generation of studies on environmental dilemmas and ways to transit ecologically not only become essential to understand contemporary reality but also encourage commitment to the ecological goals that will mark the immediate future of the planet. To this end, we receive
